

New Head of Hatfield Hotel

One of Hertfordshire's most prestigious hotels, Beales Hotel in Hatfield, has a new man at the helm. Chris Hall has been appointed as General Manager after climbing the ladder of the Beales family business.

Chris, 30, prepared for his hotel career with a BA (Hons) in Hospitality and Food Management, gaining experience at Adare Manor in Limerick, Latimer House and Harben House in Buckinghamshire before finally joining Beales Hotels as Conference and Banqueting Manager. He was later promoted to Deputy General Manager at West Lodge Park Hotel in Hadley Wood, another of Beales Hotels highly rated properties.

Chris now heads a team of fifty at Beales Hotel and hopes to lead them to even greater success in the future :

"I am extremely proud to have been handed the reins of Beales Hotel, which is already the highest rated four star hotel in the area with an award winning restaurant. I want to continue the tradition of first class customer service and introduce some fun elements as well," said Chris.

Starting as he means to go on, Chris has already introduced a new cocktail menu at the bar, with training for staff. Whilst there is no bottle throwing "I am not Tom Cruise!" added Chris, there is a new selection of juicy cocktails to enjoy, including a 'raspberry truffle' and 'cucumber and blueberry blast' alongside the more traditional 'manhattan'.

Beales Hotel has 53 rooms and suites plus a 2 AA Rosette restaurant called Outsidein and the Talkbar serving cocktails, both open to passing customers as well as hotel guests.

Beales Hotels is the oldest family business in Hertfordshire, dating back eight generations to 1769. The company owns two four star hotels, West Lodge Park in Hadley Wood and Beales Hotel in Hatfield.
